THE HONOR SOCIETY OF PHI KAPPA PHI

Phi Kappa Phi Scholar and Artist Awards Presented

The presentation of the triennial Scholar and Artist Awards highlighted the 1986 Phi Kappa Phi National Convention held August 10-14 at Michigan State University.

The winner of the Phi Kappa Phi Scholar Award was Dr. Verner E. Suomi, professor of meteorology and director of the Space Science and Engineering Center at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

The Phi Kappa Phi Artist Award was presented to Mr. William A. Brown, professor of music at the University of North Florida.

The awardees received a check for $1,500, a plaque and a citation.

international cooperative scientific undertakings in world history. Not only has this program literally saved millions of dollars in costs for weather observations, but it has been highly successful in its human and political aspects because it has brought sci-

Verner E. Suomi

Phi Kappa Phi Scholar

Dr. Suomi, a leader in international research on the weather, has played a key role in developing the utility of remote sensing in meteorological research. The "Spin-Scan Camera," which he developed, has revolutionized satellite meteorology making it possible to examine the same weather system repeatedly at intervals of a few minutes.

The technology that Suomi has helped to innovate has served as the basis for the establishment of the Global Atmospheric Research Program, which is one of the largest in-tists of all nations together in a truly cooperative effort to the benefit of all.

Suomi has received numerous awards and honors including the National Medal of Sciences, election to the National Academy of Engineering and the National Academy of the Arts and Sciences, NASA's Exceptional Scientific Achievement Medal, the Franklin Medal, and an Honorary Degree from the State University of New York, just to name a few.

Suomi is the fifth recipient of the Phi Kappa Phi Scholar Award, which was established in 1974.

Phi Kappa Phi Artist

Mr. Brown, a tenor of superb artistry and great versatility, has been led by his intellectual and musical curiosity to explore new musical horizons — from the standard concert repertoire to the wide-range of song literature from all around the world, encompassing the classical, sacred, romantic, and contemporary styles, as well as, folk songs and spirituals.

He has performed with prestigious

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

By Dr. Walter V. Hohenstein

This President's Corner carries the simple message "Thanks."

Thanks to those who served with dedication on the National Board, on National Committees, with the National Forum, and in the National Office.

Thanks to all who worked such long hours hosting the Mid-triennial Regional Seminars and planning the forthcoming National Convention at Michigan State.

Thanks also to everyone who was active in the Chapters. The health of any organization is determined by what happens at the local level, and you can all be proud of our progress during this triennium.

Thanks, especially, to all of you who gave me an opportunity to serve.
